WRITING

In my opinion, television for children has its own advantages and disadvantages.

On ~~the~~ one hand it may be useful if parents to have a lack of time to care about their children and if they play useful programmes on TV. These programmes can educate the children almost completely or just give them extra information.

On another ~~side~~ <sup>other</sup> hand, children may have the lack of communication and TV won't give them experience of doing chores or anything else. Also, if the children will be "stuck" in front of TV, they won't get vitamin D that is given by sun, and they won't have that quantity of fresh air, needed to keep their organisms healthy. And finally, they may experience a kind of ~~addition~~ <sup>addiction</sup>. All of these disadvantages are said only for children, who stare at the TV all their freetime. If they are doing exercises, learning and just sometimes watch TV, it won't be that bad.

To sum up, TV <sup>for children</sup> may be useful and bad, depends on the use.
